$1,000 in Prizes Offered for the Best Photographs Picturing Durability of Copper, Brass and Bronze

YOUR car will probably be blocked at the cross roads more than once this summer by a pretty girl with a camera taking a picture of Neighbor Jones' rusty water pipes, and your son will insist on carrying a ladder every time he takes his camera out so he can get a good close-up of all the metal roofs in the district, so you might just as well know the truth now. They are not nearly so foolish as they look. Everybody all over the country more or less will be doing the same thing. This is the reason:

Announcement has just been made in New York City of a photographic contest closing September 1 and of interest to anyone who can wield a camera. It is intended to secure from all over the country a collection of pictures showing the permanency of the non-rusting metals, copper, brass and bronze, and to stress the wastefulness of substitutes in the American home.

There will be fourteen prizes for photographs showing the lasting qualities of the metals and fourteen more showing the disadvantages of using substitutes. The first prize in each class will be $150, the second $125, third $75, fourth $50, and ten prizes of $10 each. One of the restrictions is that any copper leader, gutter, roof, pipe, or other copper or brass article of utility or ornamentation that is photographed must be at least 35 years old to qualify and the rules state that facts as to the age and condition of the subject photographed will be verified before the prizes are awarded. The photographs of substitutes for copper and brass may be of any age, and include such subjects as rusted leaders and gutters, pitted plumbing pipes, walls damaged by plumbing leakage, or floors torn up to make repairs to plumbing, rusty hardware, etc. The subject photographed need not be the contestant's property, but he must have the owner's permission to photograph it unless it is public property. Where the subject is installed as a part of a building it is permissible to send also a photo of the building itself if it lends additional interest. Such information as is necessary should be written on the back of such photos. Some of the prize-winning pictures will be printed after the contest is over. The photographs should be carefully protected with cardboard in mailing.

A contestant may enter with one or more photographs and it is promised that the prizes will be awarded within 60 days after September 1. The contest will be held under the auspices of the Contest Committee of the Copper and Brass Research Association, 25 Broadway, New York, which has drafted the rules and to which the photographs will be sent.

Ken Williams On Hitting

(By Associated Press)
St. Louis, June 14—"Nobody ever has found out where the secret of hitting lies, but all ball players agree that it must be a natural gift," declared Kenneth Williams of the St. Louis Browns leading home-run batters of the major leagues, in a radio-discourse on baseball recently.

"Anyone can acquire proficiency at fielding either infield or outfield," Williams said, "but batting must be born in you. It may be better strength in the arms or shoulders, or it may be something else." Discussing various types of base ball sluggers, Williams, who is showing the way to all major league sluggers himself, paid high tribute to George Sisler local American's first baseman, as the great left-hand batter in baseball and to Rogers Hornsby, second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, as the greatest slugger who hits from the other side of the plate.

MAKE THE FARM A FAIRYLAND

Electric light will do it!

On dark, cold mornings in mid-winter, you step out of bed, press a button, and the room is flooded with bright, warm light.

Evenings after supper, the whole family gathers 'round to read in the magic of the lamp.

—at barn, watering trough, hog house and poultry house.

You'd be surprised to know how reasonably a farm light plant can be installed on your farm—and how easily and cheaply it can be used. No trouble, no fuss, no danger.

Just bright, cheerful, friendly light that makes your farm a fairyland!
